

CASE STUDY: ARTHUR JACKSON & CO LTD AND MILLERS OILS

Precision Engineering Meets Premium Lubrication – A trusted partnership spanning generations

Company Overview

Arthur Jackson & Co Ltd is a distinguished manufacturer of high-precision patterns, dies, and tooling crafted from metal, resin, and wood. With decades of experience and a reputation for excellence, the company serves a diverse range of industries including:

- Automotive
- Rail
- Construction
- Offshore Oil & Gas
- Renewable Power Generation
- Nuclear Power
- Defence

Their commitment to quality and innovation has earned them global recognition and trust across sectors where precision is non-negotiable. Nestled in Rastrick, West Yorkshire, Arthur Jackson & Co Ltd shares its roots with Millers Oils. Both companies were founded by determined families who built their reputations on craftsmanship and reliability. Despite their close proximity both companies operated independently until our paths crossed.

The Challenge: A Decline in Oil Quality

Over 25 years ago, prior to our collaboration, Arthur Jackson began noticing a drop in the performance and quality of the oils used in their operations. For a company whose reputation hinges on precision and consistency, this posed a serious threat.

Rather than compromise, they took action.

The Solution: Millers Oils Steps In

Millers Oils, located just across the road, offered not only proximity but deep technical expertise. Our team worked closely with Arthur Jackson to identify the right solution—introducing Millcool BFF, a high-performance coolant and lubricant tailored to meet the demands of precision engineering.

Key Benefits:

- Zero transportation costs due to local supply
- Consistent product quality that restored operational confidence
- Protection of brand reputation through reliable performance

Since then, Millcool BFF has remained a staple in Arthur Jackson's operations, helping them maintain the high standards their clients expect.

Outcome: A Partnership That Powers Precision

This collaboration exemplifies how local partnerships can drive global excellence. By aligning with Millers Oils, Arthur Jackson & Co Ltd not only solved a critical operational issue but reinforced the value of community-rooted innovation.